Your eVisa and its conditions

Using your eVisa

You do not need a visa label in your passport. Your eVisa details reflect our electronic record of your visa. Check that the eVisa details match your passport before you travel and contact us immediately if you see any errors:
www.immigration.govt.nz/contact.

Do not attempt to change anything on this letter. It is an offence under the Immigration Act 2009 to use a document that you know has been altered.

You can only hold 1 visa at a time. If you held a previous visa, it is no longer valid and has been replaced by this Visitor Visa - General.

Print this document and carry it with your passport when travelling

You may be asked to show this letter when you check in for your flight to New Zealand and when you arrive at the New Zealand border. If you cannot show this letter when asked the airline may not let you board your flight or you may be delayed in entering New Zealand.

If you have a multiple-entry visa

You can enter New Zealand as a visitor as many times as you want until your visa expires. In any 12-month period, you can stay for a total of 6 months. This 12-month period is calculated back from the last day you intend to be in New Zealand during your visit.

For example, if the last day you intend to be in New Zealand is 1 December 2025, you can spend a total of 6 months in New Zealand between 1 December 2024 and 1 December 2025.

This maximum stay requirement does not apply to you if you hold a Guardian Visitor Visa or a Parent Boost Visitor Visa. Refer to your visa conditions on page 1 to see how long you can stay in New Zealand.

If you have a single-entry visa

You can enter New Zealand as a visitor once and stay until your visa expires. If you leave New Zealand, your visa will expire.

Our website has more information about visitor visa travel conditions:
www.immigration.govt.nz/visitor-visa-conditions.

Travelling to New Zealand

Before you travel to New Zealand
If you are outside of New Zealand, you must complete a New Zealand Traveller Declaration to enter the country. You can complete a declaration online 24 hours before you start your journey to New Zealand at:
www.travellerdeclaration.govt.nz.

When you arrive
When you arrive at the New Zealand border, you must request entry permission, even if you hold a valid visa.

To request entry permission, you must complete a New Zealand Traveller Declaration and either:

- present your passport to an immigration officer
- use an eGate or SmartGate if you hold an eligible passport.

An immigration officer might ask you to provide evidence to support your entry into New Zealand. This could include showing that you can:

- financially support yourself while you are in New Zealand
- leave New Zealand and travel to a country you have the right to enter, such as having a paid travel ticket, enough money to purchase a ticket, or an approved sponsorship.

You may also need to show this evidence when you check in for your flight. If you cannot show that you will be able to leave New Zealand, you may not be allowed to travel or enter here.

Our website has more information about our entry requirements:
www.immigration.govt.nz/arriving.

If any of your circumstances change
While you are outside of New Zealand, and when you arrive in New Zealand and apply for entry permission, you must tell us about any relevant changes to your circumstances, as this may affect your ability to enter and stay in New Zealand.

This could include changes to your:

- health
- criminal or deportation history
- business, employment or course of study
- personal or family circumstances.

While you are in New Zealand

You cannot stay in New Zealand without a visa
You must always hold a valid visa while you are in New Zealand. If you want to stay in New Zealand after your visa expires, you will need to apply for another visa before your current visa expires. If you want to apply for another visa, you should do so at least 1 month before your current visa expires.

If you remain in New Zealand without a valid visa, you will be in New Zealand unlawfully. This will make you liable for deportation. If you are deported, this will affect your ability to come to New Zealand in the future or to travel to other countries.

If you renew or replace your passport
If you get a new passport while this visa is still valid, you must ask us to update your visa details so that they match your new passport.

Our website tells you how to transfer your visa to a new passport:
www.immigration.govt.nz/transfervisa.

Holidaying in New Zealand
If you are coming to New Zealand for a holiday, Tourism New Zealand's website has information on what to see and do, and advice to help you plan your time here:
www.newzealand.com/nz.

Working in New Zealand
You must not work for a New Zealand employer or client on this visa, unless you have specific visa conditions that allow this.

You can do remote work for an overseas-based employer or client while you are visiting New Zealand.

Remote work in New Zealand must not involve:

- working for a New Zealand employer
- providing goods or services to people or businesses in New Zealand, in exchange for money or other rewards (including accommodation)
- work that requires you to be physically present at a workplace in New Zealand.

If you wish to do any of these types of work in New Zealand, you must either:

- have existing specific visa conditions that allow this; or
- apply for a work visa or a variation of conditions, if you are eligible.

More information on working remotely in New Zealand can be found on our website:
www.immigration.govt.nz/working-remotely.

Varying the conditions of your visa
You may be able to change the conditions of your visa. To do this, you will need to apply for a variation of conditions.

Visit our website for more information on how to apply for a variation of conditions:
www.immigration.govt.nz/check-change-visitor-visa.

Automated systems
Some aspects of your application have been processed using automated systems in accordance with section 28 of the Immigration Act 2009. For more information about INZ's use of automated systems go to:
www.immigration.govt.nz/terms-of-use.
